SPRINGFIELD LIBRARY

Device aids the visually challenged

A late-model low-vision magnifier is now available to the public at the Springfield Public Library, replacing an earlier outdated machine. The new magnifier is an Optelec Clear-View model, and was generously donated to the Library by the Wildish family in memory of their father, Tom Wildish, long-time Springfield resident.

The magnifying machine enlarges type or any kind of close-work to aid those who are visually challenged, and is available to the public any time during the Library's open hours.
